

I strongly recommend against loosening restrictions on corporate ownership of media outlets. The news that comes in from these sources does not represent a factual view of the world, but one stilted in favor of the corporation that owns it. Independent media outlets operate on the principle of reporting the news of interest to a community, not news of interest to themselves.